freedom of expression as enshrined in our Constitution, more than 70 years after the Republic of India? It can be seen that media freedom is being undermined in many parts of our country and this is how it affects our freedom of expression and our right to question wrong doing?

If there is economic and social equality in our country as stated in our Constitution, why is there still a need for reservations? We have to see whether this is a failure of the Indian Constitution?

Sivani Kumari 4 min

How far the Independence of Judiciary is ensured under the Constitution of India ?

Vyshnavi V Now

Sir, we have seen a lot of controversy in recent times regarding our Indian judicial system. For example, there have been several cases of contempt of court in connection with Advocate Prashant Bhushan, Justice Karnan and the actions of Supreme Court judges. I have heard many people comment that our Indian judicial system is collapsing .. What is Sir's reaction to this as a judge?

Our Indian current government has a clear majority in Parliament. In this case, our opposition parties often do not have a majority and cannot react when a law is passed by Parliament. It is often seen as the dominance of a party. In this situation we can often question many of their wrong doings. So how do we respond to it and what is the role of the Indian judiciary in that?
